THE time has gone by, we suppose, when any apology can be expected for the presentation of a new book. The great mass of singers who can read music, are ever anxious to have something new for perusal and practice before them; and those of us who would continue to benefit them by our labor, must endeavor to meet this demand.

The volume here presented has a greater amount and variety of new music than was contained in its predecessor, "The Psalmist:" at the same time it embraces a small portion of the music already in use. This last feature of the work was intended not to save materials, but to meet the views of those who, after all their desire for novelty, do not wish everything changed at once in the selection of pieces for public worship.

The character of the music of the present work is as varied as are the talents of different choirs, and the characteristics of the psalms and hymns in reference to poetic and religious sentiment.

In reference to musical adaptation, our plan has been to arrange the music to words so specifically appropriate, that the manner of performance will readily suggest itself to the singer whose sensibilities are properly alive to the subject. Without these sensibilities, no artistical acquirements can secure the great end of Christian edification. Dynamic distinctions, useful as they are in some cases to illustrate the meaning of the composer, should never be made the chief objects of attention. The words should be studied and be made the subject of serious contemplation, if we would ever learn to sing with true expression. The orator is guided in his style of delivery, not chiefly by marks and pauses, but by a consideration of the subject matter of what he is uttering; and the vocalist should in sacred music be governed in a similar manner. The style of secular music is perpetually changing, because it is governed by fashion rather than by taste: but the true principles of taste as applied to the subject of devotional music, it should be remembered, are fundamentally always the same. The one grand object with the composer and performer of church music, should be to preserve at all times such an unvarnished style of fervent, chaste simplicity, as shall secure in the congregation of worshipers the great ends contemplated by the All-wise Founder of the institution.

Many thanks to the several individuals who have kindly contributed to the pages of this volume. Their interesting productions, we trust, will be duly appreciated.

ELEMENTS OF VOCAL MUSIC,

AS PRESENTED BY MR. BRADBURY.

CHAPTER I.

§ I. In Music, certain CHARACTERS or SIGNS are used to represent and regulate sounds. They may be embraced in THREE general classes, viz:

1. Such as represent the LENGTH of sounds
2. Such as represent the PITCH of sounds.
3. Such as represent the POWER of sounds.

The department which relates to the FIRST of these is called RHYTHM. That which relates to the SECOND is called - - - MELODY. That which relates to the THIRD is called - - - DYNAMICS.

§ II. Thus, under the three heads, RHYTHM, MELODY, and DYNAMICS, are embraced all characters relating to Length, Pitch and Power.

QUESTIONS.—What are used to represent and regulate sounds in Music? These Characters or SIGNS may be embraced in how many classes? Name them. What is that department called which relates to the FIRST? That which relates to the SECOND? That which relates to the THIRD? What then is meant by the term Rhythm? Melody? Dynamics? What do the three heads RHYTHM, MELODY and DYNAMICS embrace?

CHAPTER II. RHYTHM.

RHYTHMICAL CHARACTERS EXPLAINED.

§ III. The Characters or Signs used to represent the LENGTH of SOUNDS, are called

NOTES.

§ IV. * Six kinds of Notes are generally used, viz:

Semibreve, or Whole Note.	Minim or Half Note	Crotchet, or Quarter Note.	Quaver, or Eighth Note.	Semiquaver, or Sixteenth Note.	Demisemiquaver, or Thirty second Note.
Open head	Open head, and Stem	Closed head, and Stem.	Head, Stem, and one Hook	Head, Stem, and two Hooks.	Head, Stem, and three Hooks.

* A Character twice the length of the Whole Note, called a Breve or Double Note, is sometimes used. It is, however, so seldom required, that the Semibreve is denominated the WHOLE NOTE

§ V. Each note represents a distinct Musical Sound. The sounds represented by the foregoing notes are to be of different LENGTHS, as the names of the notes indicate. For example, the WHOLE NOTE represents a long sound. The HALF NOTE a sound half as long as the Whole Note. The QUARTER NOTE a sound one quarter as long as the Whole Note, &c.

§ VI. Characters indicating Silence, are called

RESTS.

Whole Rest.	Half Rest.	Quarter Rest.	Eighth Rest.	Sixteenth Rest.	Thirty-second Rest

Under a line. Over a line. Turned to the right. Turned to the left. Two hooks. Three hooks.

§ VII. The time given to a REST, should correspond with the note whose name it bears.

QUESTIONS.—What are those Rhythmical Characters called which are used to represent the LENGTH of sounds? How many kinds of Notes are commonly used? Name and describe each note. What does each note represent? Are the sounds of the notes to be of equal lengths? How many half notes should be performed in the time of one whole note? How many quarters? How many eighths? How many sixteenths? How many thirty-seconds? How many quarter notes should be performed in the time of one half note? How many eighths? How many sixteenths? How many thirty-seconds? How many eighth notes should be performed in the time of one quarter note? How many sixteenths? How many thirty-seconds? How many sixteenth notes should be performed in the time of one eighth note? How many thirty-seconds? How many thirty-second notes should be performed in the time of one sixteenth note? What are those characters called which denote silence? Name and describe each rest.

BEATING TIME, ACCENT, &C.

§ VIII. In the performance of music, some practical guide is necessary by which each note may receive its just proportion of time. This guide we have in the act of BEATING TIME.

Among the ancients "a violation of Rhythm, or time, was an unpardonable offence." And it is said of PLATO, that he "refused the title of Musician to every one who was not perfectly versed in Rhythm." "With the Greeks, almost the whole of whose music was but a melodious recital of poetry, Rhythm was the first object of attention."

BEATING TIME with the hand is the only correct method of measuring it while singing.

§ IX. All music is divided into small equal portions called MEASURES, by perpendicular lines called BARS.

EXAMPLE OF MUSIC DIVIDED INTO MEASURES.

QUESTIONS ON THE ABOVE EXAMPLE.—How many measures in the above example? How many Bars? What is the distance from one Bar to another called? What are the names of the characters used to divide music into Measures? What kind of notes are contained in the first of the above measures? What in the second? How many quarter notes must be sung in the time of one half note? What notes are in the third measure? What in the fourth? How many quarter notes are equal to one whole note? How many half notes are equal to one whole note?

§ X. Four kinds of time or measure are necessary to be thoroughly studied and practiced, viz: Double, Triple, Quadruple, and Sextuple.

PRACTICAL EXERCISES IN RHYTHM.

QUESTIONS.—If you give one beat to each quarter note, how much time, or how many beats must you give to each half note? To each whole note? To eighth notes? What kind of notes in the first measure of exercise No. 1? In the second? Third? Fourth? What kind of notes in the first measure of exercise No. 2? In the second measure? Third measure? Fourth measure? What beat must be given to the first note of the first measure? Ans. The down beat? What beat to the second note? To the third note? To the fourth note? What beat or beats to the first note of the second measure? To the second note? To the note in the third measure? &c

NOTE.—The teacher will ask similar questions in relation to all the following exercises, previous to singing them.

Beat time, and sing the following examples to the syllable La.

EX. No. 1. DOUBLE MEASURE. No. 2. QUADRUPLE MEASURE.

§ XI. A dot [·] adds one half to the length of any note; for example, a dotted half note is equal to three quarters; a dotted quarter is equal to three eighths, &c.

TRIPLE MEASURE.

No. 4.

SEXTUPLE MEASURE.

When the movement in Sextuple Measure is rapid, it may be beaten the same as Double Measure. When it is slow, beating may also be performed with three motions repeated, when this method is preferred.

§ XII. A Triplet is three notes grouped together, over which the figure 3 is placed, to be sung in the time of two of the same name

No. 5.

QUADRUPLE MEASURE.

QUESTIONS.—What is necessary in order to give each note its just proportion of time? What is the guide for measuring time while singing? How many kinds of time are necessary to be studied and practised? Name them. How many beats has Double Measure? What is the upper figure? How many varieties? What are the motions of the hand? How is Double Measure Accented?

NOTE TO THE TEACHER.—Ask similar questions upon Triple, Quadruple, and Sextuple measure.

CHAPTER IV. MELODY.

TO THE TEACHER.—The Scale may here be introduced and practiced if desirable, previous to the full explanation of the Staff, Clefs, Letters, &c.

MELODIC CHARACTERS EXPLAINED.

§ XIII. The Characters used to represent and regulate the PITCH of sounds are the STAFF consisting of five lines and four spaces, upon which the notes are placed, and the CLEFS. The Treble or G Clef fixes the letter G on the second line of the staff.

§ XIV. The F or Base Clef [] fixes the letter F on the fourth line of the staff.

§ XV. The first seven letters of the Alphabet, A, B, C, D, E, F, G, are the only letters employed for Musical purposes. Each one of these letters stands for a certain sound; for example, the sound of A, correctly given, is the same in all parts of the world.

§ XVI. The Lines and Spaces of the staff are named after the seven letters: for example, the name of the first line is E; the name of the second line is G, &c.

When more than the regular staff is required, short lines, called added, or leger lines, are placed above or below the staff. These with the additional spaces, are numbered and lettered in a similar manner.

Example of Treble and Base Staves.

TREBLE STAFF.

BASE STAFF.

§ XVII. Each line and space of the staff is called a degree.

§ XVIII. The letters of the Staff may also be represented by the hands, as seen in the following cut.

N. B. Name the fingers after the lines, and the distances between the fingers after the spaces.

RIGHT HAND.—TREBLE STAFF.

The following table should be committed to memory. Repeat several times backwards, as well as forwards.

TREBLE STAFF.				BASE STAFF.
First, or lowest line is E .	First space is - - F .	First or lowest line is G .	First space is A .	First or lowest line is G .	First space is A .

§ XIX. NOTES, though RHYTHMICAL CHARACTERS, when placed upon the staff, show by their position, the PITCH of the sounds.

For example, a whole note placed on C, shows that C is the particular sound required; a half note placed on D shows that the sound of D is next required; a quarter note on E, shows that E is the next sound required; the length of these sounds to be governed wholly by the kind of notes thus placed upon the staff—the first sound in this instance, (represented by the whole note) to be twice as long as that represented by the half note, and four times as long as the sound designated by the position of the quarter note, and so on through the whole scale; the form or shape of the note shows the length,—the position of the note designates the pitch of any sound required.

§ XX. A succession of eight notes placed upon the staff form what is called THE SCALE, which is the foundation of all melody, and from which all musical compositions are derived. The syllables generally used in the practice of the scale are,

Written. Do, Re, Mi, Fa, Sol, La, Si, Do.
 Pronounced. Doe, Ray, Mee, Fah, Sole, Lah, See, Doe.
 The numerals are 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8.

§ XXI. The distances which the voice observes in ascending and descending the scale, are called INTERVALS or steps

§ XXII. The scale now under consideration called the DIATONIC (Major) SCALE, commences with C.

§ XXIII. The Intervals or Steps in the scale are as follows, viz. From 1 to 2, is a tone. 2 to 3, a tone. 3 to 4, a half tone. 4 to 5, a tone. 5 to 6, a tone. 6 to 7, a tone. 7 to 8, a half tone: Five tones and two half or semitones.

§ XXIV. The order of Intervals must be the same in every Diatonic Major Scale as represented in § XXIII, and in the following example. Otherwise the scale will be imperfect.

QUESTIONS.—What characters are used to represent and regulate the pitch of sounds? What is the use of the staff? Of the Treble Clef? Of the Base Clef? What letters are used for the Musical Alphabet? For what does each letter stand? Does the same letter represent the same sound in all parts of the world? How are the degrees of the staff named? What is the name of the first line of the Treble Staff? Second line? &c. First space? &c. Note:—Question the pupils on all the lines and spaces, both above and below the staves, Base and Treble. When more than the regular staff is required what is to be done? How are they numbered and lettered? What is each line and space of the Staff called? How many degrees are there? How may the Staves be represented by the hands? What does the first or little finger of the right hand represent? (Continue similar questions.) The first or little finger of the left hand? &c. &c. What are Notes? When placed upon the Staff what do they also show? How do they show the pitch of sounds? How is the Scale formed? What is the foundation of all Melody? What are the syllables generally used in the practice of the Scale? Numerals? Letters of the present Scale? Where does this Scale commence in the Treble Staff? Where on the Base Staff? What are the steps or distances called? What is the name of the Scale now under consideration? In what Key is it? Name the intervals of the Diatonic (Major) Scale? How many whole tones in this Scale? How many half tones? Must the order of intervals be the same in Diatonic (Major) Scales? What will be the consequence if they are otherwise?

MINOR SCALE.

§ XXV. In addition to the DIATONIC MAJOR SCALE, there is another, called the MINOR SCALE. This differs from the Major Scale in the situation of tones and semitones; the semitones occurring between two and three, and seven and eight ASCENDING, and between five and six, and two and three DESCENDING. NOTE.—The Teacher will here explain the use of the Sharp, Flat and Natural, (as on page 16,) by means of which all changes of the Intervals are effected.

The first syllable to every MINOR SCALE is LA, instead of DO, as in the Major Scales. For example, ONE in the Minor Scale, is La,—two is Si; THREE is Do,—FOUR is Re, &c. &c. The Minor Scale commences on the numeral SIX, and syllable LA of its Relative Major.

What is the first syllable to every Minor Scale? Repeat the syllables of the Minor Scale, ascending. Descending. Where does the Minor Scale always commence? In what Key is the Minor Scale now under consideration? Of what Major Key is this the relative Minor? What, then, is the RELATIVE MAJOR of the Key of A Minor?

EXERCISES IN THE KEY OF C, MAJOR.

Sing with the Syllables the following numerals. 1, 2,—2, 1,—1, 1, 2, 2,—2, 2, 1, 1,—2, 1, 2,—1, 2, 1,—1, 1, 3,—3, 2, 1, &c. &c.

The following exercises should all be read or recited by the syllables, numerals, letters and notes previous to their being sung; Thus:—

QUESTIONS. How many measures in exercise No. 23? (Pupils answer, Four.) In what kind of time or measure is this Example? (Ans. Quadruple measure.) What variety of Quadruple measure? Ans. Four-four. How many beats in Quadruple measure? (Pupils Answer.) What is the motion of the hand? How many, and what kind of notes in the first measure of this Example? In the second measure? Third? Fourth? How much time must be given to each quarter note in this Example? Ans. ONE BEAT. To each half note? To each whole note? Name the syllables of this exercise. Name the numerals. The letters.

NOTE. When naming the chromatic intervals by numerals, it is proper to say, Sharp one, Sharp two, Flat six, Flat seven, &c.; but when naming them by letters, C sharp, D Flat, E Flat, &c.

QUESTIONS. What is that scale termed upon which all previous exercises have been founded? Of what does the DIATONIC MAJOR SCALE consist? Between what numerals of the scale do the semitones occur? What are all the other intervals? How is the CHROMATIC SCALE formed? What are the characters used to effect this division called? What is the use of a Sharp? ♯. What is the use of a Flat? ♭. What is the use of a Natural? ♮.

THE SCALE TRANSPOSED.

§ XXXIV. In all the exercises heretofore, the syllable Do has been written on the letter C; hence all such exercises are said to be in the key of C, and C is called the key-note.^{*} For the sake of variety, and "to prevent monotony," different pieces of music require to be written in different keys: that is, (Do,) may be placed on G or D, or any other letter of the staff. Removing the Key-note from C to any other letter is called TRANSPOSITION.

§ XXXV. In transposing, or removing the key-note, we change the position of the whole scale. Great care must therefore be taken to preserve the order of intervals; from one sound to another, the same as they were in the key of C, viz: From 1 to 2, (Do to Re,) must be a whole tone; from 2 to 3, (Re to Mi.) a whole tone; from 3 to 4, (Mi to Fa.) must be a half tone; from 4 to 5, (Fa to Sol) must be a whole tone; from 5 to 6, (Sol to La.) must be a whole tone; from 6 to 7, (La to Si.) must be a whole tone; from 7 to 8, (Si to Do.) must be a half tone.

^{*} With the exception of the Key of A Minor (relative of C), in which case A is the key-note.

§ XXXVI. As the letters are situated upon the staff, from C to D is a whole tone; from D to E is a whole tone; from E to F is a half-tone; from F to G is a whole tone; from G to A is a whole tone; from A to B is a whole tone; from B to C is a half-tone.

§ XXXVII. As the intervals from 3 to 4, and 7 to 8, in the diatonic scale are, and must be semi-tones, or half tones, it will be seen that when the scale is written in the key of C, these semitones exactly correspond with the letters E and F, and B and C, which are semitones. Hence, the key of C, is called the Natural key.

§ XXXVIII. The first regular transposition of the scale, is from C to G, a fifth above. G which is Five, (Sol.) becomes One, (Do) of the new scale; A is Two, (Re.) B is Three, (Mi.) &c. In this transposition it will be observed, that all the tones and semitones of the scale will correspond with the letters upon the staff, with the exception of the 6th and 7th, and 8th, which are now E and F, and F and G. The distance or interval from 6 to 7 should be a whole tone, but from E to F, which now becomes 6 and 7, it is only a half tone. Also, from 7 to 8, should be a half tone, but from F to G, which has now become 7 and 8, the distance is a whole tone. Here is an imperfection or discrepancy in the scale. It will be seen that from 6 to 7 is only a half tone, (See Ex. 1st.) whereas, it should be a whole tone; and from 7 to 8 is a whole tone, (See Ex. 1st.) whereas it should be only a half tone.

§ XXXIX. This imperfection is remedied by placing the sign of elevation (a sharp ♯,) before F, which removes it a half tone further from E, and consequently a half tone nearer to G.

Example 2d. Scale in the key of G Perfect

§ XL. The sharps and flats, which are used to regulate the Diatonic intervals of the scale, are placed at the beginning of the piece of music, and are called the signature. For example, the signature to the key of G, is one sharp, F♯.

§ XLI. The same method is followed in all the transpositions by sharps; viz: ascending a fifth, or descending a fourth, (from Do to Sol.) 5 (Sol) will become 1 (Do), or the key note of the next succeeding key in the regular order of transposition by sharps. And in every succeeding transposition, an additional sharp will be required between the sixth and seventh, for reasons shown in the transposition from C to G.

In transposing by flats, we ascend a fourth, or descend a fifth; (from Do to Fa.) 4 (Fa), will become 1 (Do), or the key note, of the next succeeding key, and in every succeeding transposition an additional flat will be required.*

QUESTIONS. When Do, (1) is on C, what is C called? What reasons are assigned for writing music in different keys? What is transposition? Do the other notes of the scale change their position? When the scale is transposed, must the order of intervals be the same as in the key of C? What must be the interval or distance from one to two? From two to three? Three to four? Four to five? Five to six? Six to seven? Seven to eight? What is the interval from C to D? From D to E? From E to F? From F to G? From G to A? From A to B? From B to C? Between what numerals should the semitones occur? Between what syllables? In the key of C between what letters do the semitones occur? What then is the key of C called? What is the first regular transposition? What does G then become? What A? What B and C? In this transposition do all the tones and semitones of the scale correspond with the letters upon the staff? What ones do not? What should the interval from 6 to 7 be? Is it a whole tone? What should the interval from 7 to 8 be? Is it a half tone? What then do you observe in this transposition of the scale? How is the imperfection remedied? For what are sharps or flats placed at the beginning of a piece of music? What are they then called? What is the method of transposition by sharps? What is the method of transposition by flats? What will every succeeding transposition require?

* If in transposing by flats, the pupils cannot readily detect the imperfection and point out the letter that should be flatted, questions similar to the following should be proposed, viz: "What is the rule for transposing by flats? What then will be the first transposition from C?" (Pupils name the letter.) "What should be the interval from 1 to 2? What is the interval from F to G?" &c., &c., dwelling upon 3 and 4 (A and B), and upon 5 and 6 (B and C), until they can see the imperfection and suggest the remedy.

AS PRESENTED BY MR. HASTINGS.

In the early process of an English education, we learn to speak and to read before we are made acquainted with the higher principles of language. Why should not we pursue a corresponding course in the study of Vocal Music? Multitudes who now neglect the art, might in this way be readily taught to read, as well as perform plain music to acceptance, and thus be in a favorable position for making further acquirements. There is indeed such a thing as being too laboriously minute and systematic, in the very process of simplification; but the method here presented is short, as well as simple; and the compiler is happy to say that he has pursued it for years with an increasing conviction of its utility. He would not be understood, however, as disapproving of other methods. He only asks what he cheerfully accords to others, the privilege of thinking and acting for himself; and giving to the public the result of his experiments and observations. What he has here to offer will be presented briefly under two distinct heads.

I. THE ART OF READING MUSIC.

II. STYLE IN EXECUTION.

PART I.

THE ART OF READING MUSIC.

By the art of reading music is here to be understood that practical acquaintance with musical characters which will enable the pupils to sing plain music at sight. This, we shall endeavor to show, is not a difficult matter, in cases where the voice has been partially tuned. See Part II., article, Intonation. The leading principles of style as detailed in Part II., should occasionally be taken in hand, in connection with the reading exercises in Part I.

SECTION I.

1. The first step in gaining the knowledge here proposed, is to practice without the aid of written characters, fragments of the scale in connection with the syllables, Do, Re, Mi, Fa, Sol, La, Si, Do, or some other series of syllables, such as the teacher may chance to prefer, ultimately introducing the entire octave. The books may then be opened, when the pupils will be able to read such exercises as the following, almost without the aid of a prompter.

The exercises consist of ten numbered musical exercises on a five-line staff. Each exercise is a short scale of notes, typically starting on a middle line (G) and moving up and then down. Exercise 1 includes the syllables 'Do Re Do Re, &c.' written below the notes. Exercises 2 through 10 show variations in the starting and ending notes of the scale.

11 Entire Octave. 12 Promiscuous.

13 14

2. The second step in the process is to show that fragments of the scale may be so arranged, as to form regular tunes or melodies. Let the teacher with this general explanation proceed to analyze the following simple strains, when it will be found that his pupils can sing them almost without assistance.

Do you to oth - ers, as you would that they should do to you;

Do Do, &c.

What-e'er is hon - est, just, and good, With all your might pur - sue.

Chil-dren of the heavenly King, &c.

Do Do Re, &c.

Do Re, &c.

3. A third step in the process is to apply numerals to the syllables of the octave; thus:—Do is 1, Re is 2, Mi is 3, &c. Let the pupils, for example, be told to sing 1 & 2, alternately, which of course will be Do & Re. Sing successively—1, 2 3—3, 2 1: 1, 3, 5; 5, 3, 1, &c. The teacher can multiply and vary these and all other exercises upon the black-board at his pleasure.

SECTION II.

OF NOTES AND RESTS.

4. The next subject of attention is the relative or proportional length of sounds. This is signified by the six following characters called notes.

The Semibreve, or Whole Note.	The Minim, or Half Note.	The Crotchet, or Quarter Note.
The Quaver, or Eighth Note.	The Semi-Quaver, or Sixteenth Note.	The Demi-Semi-Quaver, or Thirty-Second Note.

The proportional length or duration, is that of one to two in the order just mentioned; that is, one whole note is equal to two half-notes; one half-note is equal to two quarter-notes, &c.

5. Times of-silence must also be measured like those of sound: and for this purpose, there is an equal number of characters bearing the same proportions and names. These are called Rests.

Semibreve, or Whole Rest. 	Minim, or Half Rest. 	Crotchet, or Quarter Rest.
Quaver, or Eighth Rest. 	Semi-Quaver, or Sixteenth Rest. 	Demi-Semi-Quaver, or Thirty-Second Rest.

Time is measured by equal motions of the hand in beating, and by counting, &c, as in the following exercises, where the letters d and u in connection with the numbers 1, 2, indicate the downward and upward motions of the hand.

1 Notes.

12 1 2 1 2 12 1 2 1 2, &c.

Do, &c.

2 Notes and Rests.

6. A dot affixed to a note or rest, adds one half to its value: thus a dotted  equals , a dotted  equals , &c. In the following exercises the letters d, h, u, refer to the downward, hither and upward motions of the hand.

1 Dotted Notes, &c.

1 2 3 1 2 3 1 2 3, &c.

2 Dotted half Notes.

1 2 3 1 2 3, &c.

* The dot itself is sometimes dotted, which adds half to its power thus  equals , &c.

Dotted Rests, &c.

A musical staff in 3/4 time showing a sequence of dotted notes. The notes are quarter notes with a dot, and the lyrics below are 'dhu dhu dhu dhu dhu dhu dhu dhu'.

Exercises in beating and counting may here be multiplied at the pleasure of the teacher.

SECTION III.

OF THE NATURAL SCALE AND OF TRANSPOSITIONS.

7. The octave with its syllables does not always commence as in the preceding examples. It may be removed to any part of the staff if the signs of removal are properly given. These are flats (b), sharps (#) and naturals (♮). The signs of removal are given according to the names of the lines and spaces.

8. Five lines with their spaces are called a staff. Short lines are occasionally added, called leger-lines. The lines and spaces of the staff are named by the first seven letters of the alphabet, in connection with the clefs, of which two are in general use. All this has been sufficiently exhibited in the preceding pages by Mr. Bradbury; and need not here be repeated. SEE PAGE 6.

9. When the octave commences on C, as in the following example, the scale is said to be natural.

A musical staff showing a natural scale starting on C. The top part is labeled 'TREBLE' and the bottom part 'BASE'. The notes are quarter notes, and the lyrics below are 'Do Re Me &c.'.

10. When the octave commences on any other letter or degree of the staff, the scale is said to be transposed. The introduction of a flat at the clef marks in every case, a new situation for the syllable faw; while the introduction of a sharp in like manner, marks a new situation for the syllable si. The other syllables are so governed as to preserve everywhere, the same relation.

Examples of Flats.

Three examples of scales with flats. Each example shows a treble and bass clef staff. The first is 'B FLAT.', the second is 'B & E FLAT.', and the third is 'B, E & A FLAT.'. The lyrics are 'Faw Me Re Do, &c.' for each.

Examples of Sharps.

Three examples of scales with sharps. Each example shows a treble and bass clef staff. The first is 'F SHARP.', the second is 'F & C SHARP.', and the third is 'F, C & G SHARP.'. The lyrics are 'Si Do Re Me Faw, &c.' for each.

The Natural is used in this connection only where a flat or sharp is to be removed.

11. The pupils may now be referred to tunes in the book for purposes of illustration and practice. In all transpositions, relatively speaking, the syllables have the same uniform power; the distance from do to re, re to mi, &c., being always the same. To prevent embarrassment in reading, the pupil should consider the syllables chiefly in their relation to each other. Do, re, mi, for instance, occupy in all the changes, three successive degrees of the staff; while do, mi, sol—re, fa, la, fa, la, do, &c., are sounds that always skip from line to line or from space to space.

The ascending fourth as do, fa—re, sol, &c., skips over an additional degree; while the ascending fifth skips always to the second line or space, &c

For the want of such observations as these, the pupil is often embarrassed in his calculations, to a degree which is quite unnecessary. Performers on instruments seldom think of this, as they are governed by different principles and habits.

12. The practice of accidentals, as explained in section 5, on the following page, may be here introduced, chiefly with reference to the power of syllables as guides to the voice.

SECTION IV.

OF TIME, ACCENT, &c.

13. In section II., we considered the relative length of sounds as indicated by the different forms of the notes, &c.; but the time of a movement may be slower or faster, without interfering with relative proportions. When, for example, we apply four beats to the whole note, we must allow two beats to the half-note and one to the quarter-note; but when we apply only two beats to the whole note we must allow but one beat to the half-note, &c.*

14. Every movement is divided by the single bar into equal portions of time called measures.

The time of a movement is further indicated by large figures placed at the beginning, which denote fractional portions of the semi-breve or whole-note, as applied to the measures: thus— $\frac{1}{2}$ designate the value of four crotchets or quarter-notes; $\frac{2}{4}$ the value of two minims or half notes. The upper figure gives also in general the number of beats in a measure; while the lower figure shows what note is taken to a beat. See examples on the fifth page. See also exercises for practice, pages 9, 10, 11, 12, &c.

15. The hand in beating always falls over the bar, and the principal accent generally corresponds with the downward motion of the hand. Where several notes are taken to a beat, there is an accent of a subordinate character which is reckoned in pairs or triplets. Let these things be explained and illustrated by the teacher; and practice, industriously pursued, will accomplish the rest.

SECTION V.

TONES, SEMITONES AND ACCIDENTALS.

16. Though the degrees of the staff represent equal distances to the eye, the voice in passing gradually over them, proceeds by unequal distances called tones and semitones. These are governed by syllables.* The distance between mi and fa, and between si and do, is that of a semitone. Between the other syllables the distance is a tone.

* The motions of the hand also, may be slower in some movements than in others.

17. The voice by practice, acquires the habit of so regulating sounds by syllables, that the right syllable suggests the right sound, and the wrong syllable the wrong sound, after the pitch of the tune or lesson has been given. But as the order of tones and semitones often changes in the course of a movement, while the syllables are not removed, the latter must in such case be so varied in pronunciation as to bring to mind the new sounds required.

18. The changes just mentioned are indicated by flats, sharps and naturals which thus occurring in the course of the movement are called accidentals. The flat thus marks the depression of a semitone; and the sharp, a corresponding elevation, while the natural merely restores to a note previously altered, its primitive sound.

19. When the pitch of a note is to be depressed, the pronunciation of the syllables should be so altered, as to rhyme with the sound of long A, thus do will become day, sol will become say, &c. When the pitch of a note is to be elevated, the syllable should be so modified as to rhyme with E long, when do will become di, (pronounced dee,) sol will become si, &c. Such altered notes are called chromatic. For exercises in chromatic intervals, see pages 17 and 18.

SECTION VI.

REMAINING MUSICAL CHARACTERS.

20. The remaining musical characters are the Brace, Double-bar, Close, Repeat, Pause, Figure-three, Choosing-note, Mark of distinction, Slur, Crescendo, Diminuendo and Swell, Apoggiatures, After-notes and

* That is, in vocal music. The instruments have appropriate touches for every tone and semitone, in dependent of syllables Graces. These the teacher may define at his leisure, as found in the preceding pages of Mr. B. The order of introducing them is not very material, provided the demands of practice are sufficiently regarded.

SECTION VII.

OF KEYS, MAJOR AND MINOR SCALES, &c.

21. The first note of the ascending and descending octave or scale of sounds is called a key. The scale which commences with do is called major. The intervals of the major scale, as will appear from what was said in relation to syllables in section V, will run thus:

Tone, tone, semitone, tone, tone, tone, semitone.

22. There is another scale called minor which commences and ends with the syllable la. The intervals according to this arrangement would stand thus:

Tone, semitone, tone, tone, semitone, tone, tone; which series taken inversely, is indeed, the established descending order. But as the sixth and seventh notes of the ascending minor are elevated, each a semitone by accidentals; the upper notes of this ascending scale are tuned like the upper notes of the major scale; the syllables mi, fi, sol, la, having in the one case the same power, as sol, la, si, do, in the other.

For a more detailed account of this subject the pupil may be ultimately referred to Mr B's. remarks and illustrations in the preceding pages.

We might here proceed to speak of chords and of modulation did our limits permit; but we have finished all we intended to offer in the present connection; and must proceed very briefly with the second division of our subject.

PART II.

STYLE IN EXECUTION.

Persons may excel in the art of reading and yet be very deficient in their style of execution. The leading properties of style, therefore, should be early and sedulously inculcated. They should be taken in hand at the very commencement of a course of elementary instructions.

Style in devotional music is a very different thing from style in the secular department of the art. Professional men are prone to forget this distinction; and some will even deny its existence. But it needs no argument to show that music intended for religion's edification ought to have a style of its own. The same leading principles which govern the eloquence of the pulpit are here in point. The mere novice in oratory, has difficulties to overcome, habits to acquire, and a reputation to establish; and ultimately, he may have excellences to shiue in display. All this, in schools and public exhibitions is a matter of course; but surely the pulpit is no place for things of this nature. Here, the orator must be lost sight of in the greatness of his subject. He has an appeal to make to rational and sentient beings, which is too momentous in its nature to admit of such comparative trifling.

And thus in the eloquence of music, there must of course be professional practice, and there will be amusement and display. This should be allowed in its proper place, but not in immediate connection with the office of religious song. The affections of the mind are here to be very differently employed. The man who would be exhibiting himself, while pretending to worship his Maker, is committing a capital offence. He may have a reputation to support, and talents which are worthy of commendation, but he has chosen the wrong time and place for display; and is virtually endeavoring to rob the Master of Assemblies of that homage which is exclusively due to Him.

Talent indeed has its importance; and hence the necessity of assiduous cultivation. But the lessons in song like those in pulpit oratory, should be so mastered in preparatory rehearsals as to prevent labor, embarrassment and seeming affectation in the time of worship. Then the mind needs to break loose from every entanglement, that it may employ itself in holy contemplations.

In secular music the words are comparatively of little moment, and will often be sacrificed to sound, In religious music the words are momentous; and the office of the singer is to illustrate them and enforce their meaning. In the one case the music is the sole object of attraction; in the other it is to be made the specific instrument of religious edification. Objects so different, demand of course, corresponding differences in style.

Laying aside then the specific maxims of the secular department; let us inquire how the meaning and spirit of the words we utter, can be best set forth in the cloquence of song.

I. The singer needs a pleasant tone of voice. This is not wholly the gift of nature; for the worst voice is susceptible of much improvement. The process of cultivation is first upon the open vowels and afterwards upon the broad, and slender, and short ones. Let all these be habitually formed in the best possible manner, and the work is nearly accomplished. The voice however should not be forced in any way, but be suffered to improve gradually by intelligent practice and imitation. Voices will not always be alike. Some will be reedy and powerful, and others soft and mellifluous.

II. There must be good intonation, for jargon is of course intolerable. To be able to sing in tune is always an acquired faculty. Hence the practice of scales and of harmonic combinations, which are more or less simple in their structure, form the most certain means of improvement. Every voice is found to need more or less tuning; and some of the more obstinate ones demand an amount of practice far greater than the pupil has time and patience to bestow. This process of tuning, too, needs often to be repeated, especially after a season of great negligence in practice. Teachers, as well as pupils, are liable from various causes, occasionally to sing out of tune. The best time to commence this process is early childhood, when every voice is regulated with comparative ease.

III. The art of keeping time is also one of the essentials of style. Skill in this respect is acquired not by genius or imitation, but by industrious habits of computation. System with untiring industry is all that the case demands.

IV. There must be a distinct and pleasant utterance of the words. For the purpose of securing this, not only stanzas, lines and phrases and syllables, and letters, are to be taken in hand; but the elements or powers of the consonants must be accurately described, as separate from the vowels used in pronouncing them; thus the element of aytch is heard in the simple act of puffing; that of ef in the act of blowing; and that of re in the act of vibrating the under lip, &c. The first stage in the process is to secure great accuracy and force; the second to form the right distinction between words and syllables, and the third to secure an easy flowing enunciation. All this requires time, especially where the notions and habits of singers have been sophisticated by wrong instruction and practice.

V. There must be appropriate accent and emphasis. The importance of these properties in language need not here be insisted upon. Language would be powerless and often unintelligible without them. But in musical performances, they are too generally neglected. There is some excuse for this in the secular department where the words are of little moment: but not so in religious music where the meaning and power of the words are to be enforced by the eloquence of song. Here, these properties are indispensable. If language is to be the instrument of conveying ideas and sentiments and producing definite emotions, then surely, it ought not to be deprived of its essential properties in song. Musical notation as we have seen, makes some general provision for accent and emphasis: but the principles of good reading, must ultimately be resorted to, as furnishing the best hints for practice.

VI. There should be just expression. A performance which is destitute of this property, however faultless it may be, in other respects, will fail to exert an appropriate influence. This crowning excellence however, is more easily felt than described. It will never be acquired without a careful training of the emotions. Appropriate feeling, will lead the singer, unbiased by wrong instruction, to become expressive in his style. He will soon learn by imitation, to suit the voice and manner to the subject; making gentle variations as to slowness and rapidity, loudness and softness, heaviness and lightness of movement, &c.; and he will learn the importance of swells, crescendos and diminuendos, &c. These things are not to be employed mechanically as if the singer were a mere automaton. They will be sure to savor of affectation, unless rendered habitual under the guidance of specific emotions. The extensive neglect of this subject among teachers of church music is more than sufficient to account for the general want of expression in church music. Such neglect admits of no apology. Sentiment is the great thing to be insisted upon, throughout every stage of cultivation.

VII. It is an obvious principle in every department of religious worship, that emotions should be unfeigned. They should not be suffered to arise merely through gratified taste, but be made to spring up in the mind while it is employed in the contemplation of holy things. This important distinction will not be preserved in the hours of devotion, where it has been neglected in seasons of practice. It requires specific religious training in schools and family circles; and will not be maintained in any other way. Habit has its influence in devotion, as in other things. The department of singers and teachers during the hours of practice, therefore becomes a matter of great moment. To cultivate the praises of the highest God is a solemn work, and should ever be so regarded. Volumes would fail to show the importance of this principle. How then can any teacher of devotional music, dare to treat it with neglect? Yet this neglect seems to be almost universal. No wonder that the friends and cultivators of the art have so many difficulties to encounter. Let their efforts be fully Christianized, and the difficulties will be seen to vanish.

Is the owner of this volume associated with those who lead in the songs of Zion? A precious privilege! Delightful employment! It is the occupation of angels and of glorified spirits in the temple above. Prayer and the ministrations of the word will cease with the termination of earthly things; but praise shall endure forever. The blessed ones on high are never weary, never negligent. Their golden harps are always strung, and their voices forever in tune. The soft echoes of their minstrelsy have come down to us, that we may learn to emulate their strains and begin on earth the everlasting song.

But do we enter into the true spirit of praise? The manner of song has indeed its claims. There must, as we have seen, be melody, and harmony, and time, as well as verbal utterance, which is distinct and impressive; yet if there is nothing more than this, the office of praise will be deprived of its choicest influences.

But the reader of these pages goes a step farther. He delights in the exercise, and his feelings are often deeply interested. This is well. There is much in the commingling of harmonious voices, which is adapted to call forth the sweet sympathies of our nature. The pleasures of taste are very properly allowed to mingle with the fervors of devotion: but the danger is, that the former will have a preponderating influence.

You advance, then, an additional step. You carefully notice the sentiments of the psalm or hymn you are singing; and endeavor at all times to give them an effective utterance. This also is well. Strictly speaking, there can be no good singing without it. So much as this is expected of the vocalist at the oratorio, and the secular concert. Unless he rightly conceives of his subject, and appears to enter into the spirit of it, with becoming emotion, he is considered a dull performer. And shall the hallowed theme of the gospel be less appreciated by the singer, and be uttered with less emotion?

But the most important point yet remains to be considered. Do you enter into the spirit of religious song as a mere sentimentalist; or do you make the hallowed sentiments of the Psalm or Hymn your own, as in the immediate presence of the heart-searching God? To do the former is comparatively easy. Even the infidel may become a successful personator of devotion. He can assume the sentimentalist in a religion which he despises, just as he may give the appearance of reality to the fictions of the drama. Emotions of this class are easily excited; and they are sometimes so delightful that their real nature is liable to be misunderstood.

The true worship of God is a much higher exercise. You are speaking in the eloquence of song, in the midst of a worshipping assembly. We love to listen to your language, and to gather heavenly fragrance from your breathing accents: but do you intend to be individually responsible for what you are uttering? When the hymn is didactic, do you feel any thing of the responsibilities of a religious teacher? When it is hortatory, do you really desire that there may be among the listeners an increase of practical godliness? When you say "have mercy upon me," are you personally engaged in supplication? When you say "Praise God in his holiness," do you take delight in that attribute of the Divine Nature? When you say "Lord search my heart and try my ways," do you really desire that he may search and try you? When you utter the language of contrition, faith, hope, love, joy, do you really repent of sin, believe in the Lord Jesus Christ, hope in God, exercise supreme love to him and rejoice in his government? If you can truly answer such questions as these in the affirmative, your lot is among the favored ones: You know the blessed privilege of those who have commenced the undying song. Sing on through your earthly pilgrimage with holy delight. The sweetest notes you here can raise, will prove but a faint prelude to the raptures which remain to be revealed — flat if on the contrary, truth compels you continually to reply in the negative to such questions; then is it not too painfully manifest, that, with all your pleasing sentimentalities, you are a mere personator of devotion, and know nothing of the peculiar privileges which appertain to the holy office of praise? Continuing thus a mere formalist in religion, your songs however delightful to yourself and to others, must at last give place to interminable wailings!

Full well we know that even the Christian is not always on the mount of privilege. He is often in darkness and doubt — troubled with conflicting emotions, while his affections seem languid and his sensible comforts are few and feeble. He scarcely knows at such times, 'what he should pray for,' or how he should give thanks. Still there is a wide difference between him and the mere sentimentalist. The one has at least, the willing mind — He desires to exercise right affections; and will sometimes be graciously accepted when he knows it not. The other is but the ingenious meekamist who operates upon the human sympathies, the mimic painter who portrays the influences which surround him, or the studied orator who moves for the time being, in an assumed character.

Under this distinction we recognize two very different classes of singers. To which of them does the reader belong? Do not presume for a moment, that any sacrifice of praise will be accepted of God which springs not from the deep seated affections of the heart. Secular music may admit of feigned emotion: not so, the music which is devotional. Here every man is bound to become an actual, conscientious, spiritual worshipper. The bible plainly teaches this one method, and approves of no other.

The object of this article is, not to undervalue musical cultivation, for there is need of unceasing efforts and accumulating numbers. But why amidst the enjoyment of sweet sounds, should the affections of the heart be withheld? Why should any one persist in offering to God, that same species of heartless homage which he himself would disdain to receive from a fellow worm? Oh there is guilt in this! "Offer it now unto thy governor; will he be pleased with thee or accept thy person?" Is it not a shame to be offering from sabbath to sabbath, a professed oblation of gratitude and praise which one knows in his conscience ought never to be accepted!

Why should we not worship the Lord in the beauty of holiness? What has the Saviour done that he should be greeted with the mockings of heartless praise! What is there in the tender mercies of our Heavenly Father, in the love and condescension of the Holy Spirit, — O what is there in the ineffable glories of the Godhead, that can ever excuse us from rendering the full homage of our affections! It is through his infinite condescension that we are ever permitted to tune the notes of praise. And shall we abuse such a privilege as this? Shall the very offerings of gratitude become as sounding brass or a tinkling cymbal? And yet how prevalent is this heartless worship! To say nothing of the multitudes who are deficient in manner, — who bring, in this aspect, the lame and the blind in sacrifice — how many, even in the midst of cultivation and refinement have fallen into this sin. We see in many places a zeal for elementary drilling which sufficiently absorbs the attention of the pupils; and an increasing thirst for musical novelties, which is well nigh insatiable: but where, O where is the genuine spirit of praise! It never springs unbidden, like the tares of the field. It comes not in the winning forms of pleasure to the careless heart. It withers and dies, even in the heart of the Christian, whose mind is engrossed by the details of art or enchanted with the pleasures of taste. Such a spirit will be connected only with holy living in other walks of duty; and be found in our songs of praise only as the result of Christian vigilance and private, persevering prayer.

Singers, like other men, are under the strong influences of habit: and if the spirit of praise is not assiduously cultivated during the hours of practice, it will doubtless be wanting in the solemn assembly. This we know both from reason and from painful experience. Singers and teachers should think of this, and act accordingly. Let it never be forgotten, that the precise influences which habitually prevail at the rehearsals, will inevitably characterize the offerings at the sanctuary.

How holy, how glorious is the God we worship! How wonderful are his perfections! "It is good to sing praises unto his name," from the affections of an overflowing heart. What can be more delightful than the songs of joy issuing from lips that taste the love of God! Such were the psalms of David; and such the songs of the primitive Christians the martyrs and reformers. Such are the songs we should cultivate. They will prove a rich foretaste of joys unseen and eternal.

A.—signifies in, for, at, with, &c.
Adagio,—a slow movement.

STANWIX. L. M.

II.

1. Stand up, my soul, shake off thy fears, And gird the gos-pel ar-mor on; March to the gates of end-less joy, Where Je-sus, thy great Cap-tain's gone.

2. Hell and thy sins re-sist thy course, But vanquish'd are those threat'ning foes, Thy Sa-viour nail'd them to the cross, And sung the tri-umph when he rose.

3. What though the prince of dark-ness rage, And waste the fu-ry of his spite; E-ter-nal chains con-fine him down To fi-ery deeps and end-less night.

4. What though thine in-ward lusts re-bel; 'Tis but a strug-gling gasp for life; The weap-ons of vic-to-rious grace Shall slay thy sins and end the strife.

Suggested by a passage from HANDEL.

1. How sweet and aw-ful is the place, With Christ with-in the doors; While ev-er-last-ing love dis-plays The choic-est of her stores.

2. While all our hearts, with joy-ful song, Join to ad-mire the feast, Each of us eries, with thank-ful tongue, "Lord, why was I a guest?"

3. "Why was I made to hear thy voice, And en-ter while there's room? While thousands make a wretched choice, And rath-er starve than come?"

W. B. B. 131

1. There is a land of pure de-light, Where saints immortal reign; In - fi-nite day ex - cludes the night, And pleasures ban-ish pain.

3. Sweet fields, be-yond the swell-ing flood Stand dressed in living green; So to the Jews old Ca-naan stood, While Jordan roiled be - tween.

5. Oh, could we make our doubts remove, Those gloomy doubts that rise, And view the Ca - naan that we love With un - be-cloud-ed eyes:

To the land where the Saviour of sinners once trod, Where he labor'd, and languish'd, and bled ; Where he triumphed o'er death, and ascended to God, As he captive captivity led.

Where the Spirit descended in tokens of flame, The rich gifts of his grace to reveal : Where apostles wrought signs in Immanuel's name, The truth of their mission to seal.

Thy blessing go with them—oh be thou their shield From the shafts of the fowler that fly : O Saviour of sinners, thine arm be reveal'd in mercy, in might from on high.

1. Zi-on, dreary and in anguish, In the de-sert hast thou strayed! Oh, thou wea-ry, cease to languish; Je-sus shall lift up thy head.
 2. Still lament-ing and bemoaning, Mid thy fol-lies and thy woes! Soon, re-pent-ing and re-turn-ing, All thy sol-i-tude shall close.
 3. Though benighted and for-sak-en, Tho' af-lict-ed and distressed; His al-migh-ty arm shall waken; Zi-on's King shall give thee rest.
 4. Cease thy sadness, un-believ-ing; Soon his glo-ry shalt thou see— Joy and gladness, and thanksgiving, And the voice of mel-o-dy.

MISSION SONG. 8's, 7's & 6's.

Arranged from S. Songs.

1. Watchmen, on-ward, to your stations, Blow the trum-pet long and loud; }
 Preach the gos-pel to the na-tions, Speak to eve-ry gath'-ring crowd; } See! the day is break-ing; See the saints a-wak-ing, No more in sad-ness bow'd, No more in sad-ness bow'd.

11.
 Watchmen, hail the rising glory
 Of the great Messiah's reign;
 Tell the Saviour's bleeding story,
 Tell it to the listening train:
 See his love revealing;
 See the Spirit sealing;
 'Tis life among the slain!

111.
 Watchmen, as the clouds are flying,
 As the doves in haste return,
 Thousands from amid the dying,
 Flee to Christ his love to learn:
 All their sighs and sadness,
 Turn to joy and gladness,
 When they his grace discern.

* By repeating the first strain of the music, and the fifth line of each stanza.

SPANISH HYMN.

6's & 5's. Peculiar.

1. Thro' thy protecting care, Kept till the dawning;
 Taught to draw near in pray'r, Heed we the warning;
 2. God of our sleeping hours, Watch o'er us wak - ing,
 All our imperfect powers In thine hands taking;

O thou great One in three, Gladly our souls would be Evermore praising thee, God of the morning.
 In us thy work fulfil, Be with thy children still, Those who obey thy will Nev - er for - sak - ing.

1. My faith looks up to thee, Thou Lamb of Cal-va-ry, Sa-viour di-vine : Now hear me while I pray ; Take all my guilt a-way ; O, let me, from this day, Be whol-ly thine.
2. May thy rich grace impart, Strength to my fainting heart ; My zeal inspire ; As thou hast died for me, O, may my love to thee, Pure, warm, and changeless be— A living fire.

LANSINGBURGH. 6's & 5's.

German.

1. Why that look of sad-ness? Why that down-cast eye? Can no thought of glad-ness Lift thy soul on high? O thou heir of heav-en,

Think of Je-sus' love, While to thee is giv-en All his grace to prove.

II.

Is thy burden'd spirit
 Agonized for sin?
 Think of Jesus' merit;
 He can make thee clean:
 Think of Calv'ry's mountain,
 Where his blood was spilt;
 In that precious fountain,
 Wash away thy guilt.

Slow.

Tenderly.

1. Hark! from yonder mount arise Notes of sadness, Jesus dies! On the cross the Lord of lords Love for guilty man records; Sinner, sinner, Hear your dying Saviour's words.
 2. "Mortal, for your guilt I die, Guilt that dared your God defy; Blood for you I freely give; Death I taste that you may live; Will you, sinner, Free salvation now receive?"

THE PARTING SCENE. 6's & 4's. Special.*

Slow and mournful.

M.

1. Fare - well! Could we but meet On earth a - gain, One thought of joys so sweet Might heal the present pain: Fare-well! fare - well!

M.

2. Fare - well! though oceans wide Between us roll, They never can di - vide This u-nion of the soul. Fare-well! fare - well!

M.

3. Fare - well! when life is o'er, To us be given To meet on that blest shore, A - mid the bliss of heaven. Fare-well! fare - well!

* Adapted, also, to the hymn "Farewell, we meet no more." Time rather more than one second to a half note. Such pieces may serve as pleasant remembrances of past scenes. For real occasions of parting they may prove too deeply sentimental.

Soli or Semi-chorus.

Chorus.

H.

1. Je-sus, thou art the sinner's Friend, I look a-lone to thee; Now, in the full-ness of thy love, O Lord, re-mem-ber me: Remember me, Remember me.

2. Thou wondrous Advocate with God, I yield myself to thee; While thou art sitting on thy throne, Dear Lord, remember me: Remember me, Remember me.

3. Lord, I am guilt-y, weak, and vile, But thy salvation's free; And in thine all-abounding grace, Dear Lord, remember me: Remember me, Remember me.

4. And when I close my eyes in death, When creature helpers flee; Then, O my great Redeemer God, I pray, remember me: Remember me, Remember me.

CHANT NO. 2. "From the recesses." 345

HUMBLE DEVOTION.

BOWRING.

From the recesses of a lowly spirit,—
Our humble prayer ascends,—O | Fa ·· ther, | hear it;—
Borne on the trembling wings of | fear ·· and | meekness;—
For- | give ·· its | weakness.

We know—we feel, how mean, and how unworthy
The lowly sacrifice we | pour ·· be- | fore thee;—
What can we offer thee,—O | thou ·· most—holy!—
But | sin ·· and | folly?

We see thy hand—it leads us—it supports us;—
We hear thy voice—it | counsels, ·· and it | courts us;—
And then we turn away!—yet | still ·· thy | kindness
For- | gives ·· our | blindness

Who can resist thy gentle call,—appealing
To every generous thought, and | grate ·· ful | feeling?— |
O, who can hear the accents | of ·· thy | mercy,—
And | nev ·· er | love thee?

Kind Benefactor!—plant within this bosom
The seeds ·· of | holiness,— | and let them blossom
In fragrance,—and in beauty | bright ·· and | vernal,—
And | spring ·· e- | ternal.

Then place them in those everlasting gardens
Where angels walk,—and | seraphs ·· are the | wardens;— |
Where every flower,—brought safe through | death's ·· dark | portal,—
Be- | comes ·· im- | mortal.

TABLE OF FIRST LINES.

A broken heart, my God, my King, -	41	Child of sin and sorrow, - - -	232	God of the morning, at whose voice,	40	How sweet and awful is the place, -	126
Again from calm and sweet repose,	92, 103	Child of sorrow, child of care, -	238	God is the refuge of his saints, - -	82	How charming is the place, - - -	141
Again the day returns of holy rest,	196	Christ, the Lord, is risen to-day, -	235	God, my supporter and my hope, - -	112	How gentle God's commands, - 112,	154
Ah! who shall stand before thy, -	182	Come hither, all ye weary souls, -	69	God of my life, look gently down,	120	How beauteous are their feet, - -	143
Alas! and did my Saviour bleed, -	132	Come, Holy Spirit, come, - - -	146	God is gone up on high, - - -	168	How sweet the melting lay, - - -	152
Alas! how poor and little worth, -	199	Come, my soul, thy suit prepare, -	219	God of the nations, bow thine ear,	180	How sweet to bless the Lord, - -	159
All hail the power of Jesus' name,	108	Come sound his praise abroad, - -	164	God is my strong salvation, - - -	223	How calm and beautiful the morn,	183
Almighty Father, gracious Lord, -	104	Come to Calvary's holy mountain, -	207	God of evening and of morning, - -	229	How pleased and blest was I, - -	186
Amazing grace! how sweet the sound,	89	Come to the house of prayer, - - -	154	Go, messenger of peace and love, -	66, 74	How firm a foundation, &c., - - -	190
And can mine eyes, without a tear, -	99	Come, weary souls, with sins, - -	55	Go, spirit of the sainted dead, - -	70
And now, my soul, another year, -	114	Come ye that know and fear the Lord,	123	Go to dark Gethsemane, - - -	222	If, on a quiet sea, - - - - -	155
Angels from the realms of glory, -	207	Come ye that love the Lord, - - -	138	Go, tune thy voice to sacred song, -	181	I'll praise my Maker with my, -	173, 177
Angels roll the rock away, - - -	216			Great God, attend, while Zion sings,	51	I look to thee, O Lord, - - - -	180
Another six days' work is done, 40, 57, 69		Daughter of Zion, awake from thy -	193	Great God, what do I see and hear, -	201	I love to steal awhile away, - - -	104
Arm of the Lord, awake, awake, - -	74	Dear refuge of my weary soul, - -	105	Great God, how infinite art thou, -	121	I love the Lord, he heard my cries, -	107
As by the light of opening day, - -	108	Dearest of all the names above, - -	116	Great God, to thee my evening song,	130	I love the Lord, whose gracious ear, -	183
As in soft silence vernal showers, -	69	Delay not, delay not, &c., - - -	188	Great God I own thy sentence just, -	96	I love thy kingdom, Lord, - - -	141, 162
Asleep in Jesus, blessed sleep, - -	62	Descend, celestial Dove, - - -	170	Great God, whose universal sway, - -	77	I love the volume of thy word, - -	171, 175
As o'er the past my memory strays, -	131	Descend from heaven, immortal - -	63	Hail, everlasting spring, - - - -	169	I'm not ashamed to own my Lord, -	101
As showers on meadows newly - -	62	Did Christ o'er sinners weep? - -	135, 161	Hail to the brightness, &c., - - -	192	In God's own house pronounce his	129
At God's command the morning ray,	42	Do not I love thee, O my Lord, - -	86, 128	Happy the man whose cautious feet,	48	Inspirer and hearer of prayer, - -	200
Awake, and sing the song, - - -	161			Hark, hark! a shout of joy, - - -	231	I send the joys of earth away, - -	43, 73
Awake, my soul, stretch every nerve,	129	Earth's stormy night will soon be -	135	Hark! those happy voices saying, -	213	Is this the kind return, - - - -	153
Awake our souls, away our fears, - -	64	Exalt the Lord our God, - - - -	112	Hark! the herald angels sing, - -	217	I sing the almighty power of God, -	119
		Far from the world, O Lord, I flee, -	86	Hark! from yonder mount arise, - -	235	I waited patient for the Lord, - -	89
Behold the throne of grace, - - -	149	Far from mortal cares retreating, -	203	Hark! what mean those holy voices,	178	I would not live always, - - - -	189
Blessed be thy name for ever, - - -	197	Far from thy fold, O God, my feet, -	70	Heirs of an immortal crown, - - -	233
Bless, O my soul, the living God, -	54	Father of mercies, God of love, - -	191	He that hath made his refuge God,	60, 80	Jerusalem, my happy home, - - -	120
Blest are the sons of peace, - - -	147, 169	Father of mercies, in thy word, - -	97	Ho! every one that thirsts, draw -	49	Jesus, and shall it ever be, - - -	51, 78
Blest are the undefiled in heart, - -	132	Forgive my folly, - - - -	229	Hosanna to the Prince of Light, - -	98	Jesus, I come to thee, - - - -	145
Blest be the tie that binds, - - -	130	Fountain of mercy, God of love, - -	127	How beautiful those rays appear, - -	85	Jesus, lover of my soul, - - - -	229
Blest are the humble souls that see, -	72	Friend of the friendless and the faint,	47	How blest the sacred tie that binds, -	82	Jesus, thy boundless love to me, - -	61
Blest is the man, for ever blest, - -	45	From every stormy wind that blows,	42	How pleasantly, how divinely fair, -	72
Blest is the man whose heart can - -	49	Gently, Lord, O gently lead us, - -	212	How precious is the book divine, -	87, 93	Know, my soul, thy full salvation, -	202
Blest morning, whose first opening -	111	Give thanks to God most high, - - -	172	How long wilt thou conceal thy -	91, 115	Let all the heathen writers join, - -	91
Blest hour, when mortal man retires,	80	Glory to God on high, - - - -	230	How shall the young secure their -	95	Let me but hear my Saviour say - -	53
Brightest and best of the sons of the	192	God of my life, through all my days,	71	How sweet and heavenly is the - -	95, 133	Lo! he comes in clouds descending, -	268
Brother, though from yonder skies, -	216					Look, ye saints, the sight is glorious,	206
Buried in shadows of the night, - -	68, 81					Lord, in the morning thou - - -	117, 126, 135

Lord of the worlds above, - - - 166, 168	O Jesus, delight of my soul, - - - 198	Sweet is the prayer whose holy - - - 110	To our Almighty Father, God, - - - 125
Lord, thou hast searched and seen - - - 41	O Jesus, my Lord and my God, - - - 200	Sweet was the time when first I felt, - - - 112	To thee, before the dawning hour 122, 127
Lord, thou wilt hear me when I - - - 126, 130	O lay not up on this vain earth, - - - 202	Sweet the moments, rich in blessing, - - - 201	To whom, my Saviour, shall I go, - - - 125
Lord, 'tis a pleasant thing to stand, - - - 38	O Lord, I would I delight in thee, - - - 128
Lord, we come before thee now, - - - 215	O Lord, our Heavenly King, - - - 143	The day is past and gone, - - - 163	Upheld by God's Almighty arm, - - - 88
Lord, what a heaven of saving - - - 37, 53	O Lord, thy work revive, - - - 151	The God of glory sends his summons - - - 196	Upward I lift mine eyes, - - - 170
Lord, when my raptur'd thought - - - 111, 121	O Lord, in sorrow I resign, - - - 181	The God of Love will sure - - - 67, 77
Love divine, all love excelling, - - - 205	One smile, one gracious smile, - - - 186	The heavens declare thy glory, Lord, - - - 61	Wake the song of jubilee, - - - 219
Lovely is the face of nature, - - - 212	On Jordan's stormy banks I stand, - - - 91	The hour of my departure's come, - - - 62	Watchman, onward to your station, - - - 211
Lovely and solemn be, - - - 232	On thee, each morning, O my God, - - - 107	The King of saints, how fair his face, - - - 43	Welcome, delightful morn, - - - 173
	On the mountain's top appearing, - - - 209	The Lord is gracious to forgive, - - - 66	Welcome, sweet day of rest, - - - 151
Mine eyes and my desires, - - - 138	On thy church, O Power divine, - - - 218	The Lord Himself, the mighty Lord, - - - 93	What is life? 'tis but a vapor, - - - 206
My dear Redeemer and my - - - 39, 67, 72	Onward, speed thy conqu'ring flight, - - - 227	The Lord of glory is my light, - - - 103	When blooming youth is snatched - - - 96
My faith looks up to thee, - - - 232	O speak that gracious word again, - - - 97	The Lord my Shepherd is, - - - 141	When gather'ing clouds around I - - - 177
My Father's house on high, - - - 140	O that I knew the secret place, - - - 113	The Lord is risen indeed, - - - 145	When in the hours of lonely eve, - - - 80
My God, accept my early vows, - - - 52	O thou in whose presence my soul - - - 193	The Lord is my Shepherd, no want - - - 190	When I with pleasing wonder stand, - - - 87
My God, how endless is thy love, - - - 78	Our blest Redeemer, ere he breathed, - - - 214	The Lord is my Shepherd, His - - - 194	When musing sorrow weeps the past, - - - 105
My God, my Father, blissful - - - 114, 134	Our helper, God, we bless thy name, - - - 57	The tempter to my heart hath said, - - - 45	When my cries ascend to thee - - - 215
My God, permit me not to be, - - - 78	Our Lord is risen from the dead - - - 58, 75	The Saviour, Oh! what endless - - - 112	When shall the voice of singing, - - - 224
My God, permit my tongue, - - - 112, 150	Out of the depths of long distress, - - - 135	The Saviour bids us watch and pray, - - - 122	When sins and fears prevailing rise, - - - 56
My God, the spring of all my - - - 100, 115	O where shall rest be found, - - - 158	The pity of the Lord, - - - 137, 139	When sorrows round us roll, - - - 140
My Shepherd will supply my need, - - - 102	O Zion, tune thy voice, - - - 166, 167	Thee we adore, Eternal name, - - - 123	When we, our wearied limbs to rest, - - - 59
My son, know thou the Lord, - - - 146		The swift declining day, - - - 139	When we pass through yonder river, - - - 209
My soul, repeat his praise, - - - 136, 137, 148	Prayer may be sweet in cottage homes, - - - 38	The rosy light is dawning, - - - 226	Who, O Lord, when life is o'er, - - - 343
	Praise to God, the great Creator, - - - 212	The voice of free grace, &c., - - - 187	Who shall the Lord's elect condemn, - - - 81
	People of the living God, - - - 213	Then let the pealing organ blow, - - - 66	While my Redeemer's near, - - - 152, 162
Not all the outward forms on earth, - - - 92	Rejoice in the Lord, - - - 234	They have gone to the land where the - - - 194	Why do we mourn departing friends, - - - 94
Not to our names, thou only just and - - - 195	Return, O wand'r'er, now return, - - - 102	There is a calm for those who weep, - - - 230	Why on the bending willows hung, - - - 51, 52
Now before thy throne we bend, - - - 218	Rise, my soul, and stretch thy wings, - - - 221	There is an hour of peaceful rest, - - - 184	Why sinks my soul desponding, - - - 227
Now condescend, Almighty King, - - - 118	Roll on, thou mighty ocean, - - - 226	There is a stream, whose gentile - - - 70	Why that look of sadness, - - - 235
Now I resolve, with all my heart, - - - 68	See Israel's gentle Shepherd stand, - - - 94	There is a fountain, filled with blood, - - - 105	Why will ye waste on trifling cares, - - - 56
Now is the day of grace, - - - 163	Show pity, Lord, O Lord forgive, - - - 39, 47	There is a glorious world of light, - - - 117	Will the Lord, in loving kindness, - - - 204
Now let our voices join, - - - 156	Shepherds, hail the wondrous stranger, - - - 203	There is a land of pure delight, - - - 131
Now night, in silent grandeur reigns, - - - 83	Sing hallelujah, praise the Lord, - - - 214, 221	Think, mighty God, on feeble man, - - - 174	Ye angels round the throne, - - - 136
	Soft be the lovely blooming flower, - - - 58	Thou art gone to the grave, - - - 188	Ye boundless realms of joy, - - - 167
O bless the Lord, my soul, - - - 147	Softly fades the gently breathing notes, - - - 79	Thou lovely source of true delight, - - - 99	Ye dying sons of men, - - - 171, 173
O cease, my wandering soul, - - - 158	Soffly fades the twilight ray, - - - 217	Thou blest Redeemer, dying Lamb, - - - 121	Ye golden lamps of heaven, farewell, - - - 133
O'er the gloomy hills of darkness, - - - 208	Sovereign ruler of the skies, - - - 216	Thou Shepherd of Israel and mine, - - - 198	Ye servants of God, - - - 234
O God of mercy, hear my call, - - - 116	Spirit of peace, celestial Dove, - - - 101	Thou who didst stoop below, - - - 185	Ye nations round the earth rejoice, - - - 68
O God, our help in ages past, - - - 124	Stand up, my soul, shake off thy - - - 64, 84	Thy words the raging winds control, - - - 124	Ye that obey th' immortal King, - - - 110
O God of sovereign grace, - - - 144	Star of peace, - - - 236	Through thy protecting care, - - - 231	Ye trembling captives hear, - - - 160
Oh blessed souls are they, - - - 153, 156, 157	Sweet is the light of Sabbath eve, - - - 41	Time is winging us away, - - - 224	Yes, God himself hath sworn, - - - 159
Oh could I speak the matchless worth, - - - 179	Sweet harp of Judah, shall thy sound, - - - 59	'Tis finished, so the Saviour cried, - - - 76	Yes, the Redeemer rose, - - - 165
Oh could our thoughts and wishes - - - 90	Sweet is the work, my God, my King, - - - 73	To bless thy chosen race, - - - 149	Your harps, ye trembling saints, - - - 164
Oh how I love thy holy law, - - - 116	Sweet is the memory of thy grace, - - - 92, 118	To God the Father, God the Son, - - - 84
Oh 'twas a joyful sound to hear, - - - 101		To God I cried, with mournful voice, - - - 113	Zion, dreary and in anguish, - - - 211
Oh thou whose tender mercy hears, - - - 109		To God the only wise, - - - 151
O, if my Lord would come and meet, - - - 60
